Teahouse Talk

Many of the Cantonese delicacies are now being introduced at LOUIS and ROSE SONG's Teahouse Restaurant, 25317 Crenshaw Blvd., Torrance. Adding a whole new page to its tantalizing menu and augmenting the dazzling array of Oriental specialties offered in the past.

Louis Song Each delicacy is presented under its mystical Chinese name, but guests have no difficulty ordering from the menu because of the excellent translations given by ROSE SONG, hostess, or her lovely assistant, REIKO KATSUKI.

If you confess a weakness for unusual Cantonese fare, certain to please are Pen, Chong Gor Opp and Chow Lung Har. They are Chinese translations of the names of the restaurant's owners.

Rose Song breast of chicken with mushrooms, bamboo shoots and other celestial items; young duckling steamed with spices, then boned and pressed into cakes and served with Mandarin orange sauce; and New England lobster cooked in piquant sauce.

in a sauce Oriental and Whoat Dont Ghoo (braised imported Chinese mushrooms artfully simmered in oyster sauce). With such extraordinary cuisine prepared by the Master Chef team of JOE WOO, YOKE SHEW WONG, and WARREN AND ARTHUR LEE and served promptly and courteously by the service team of JOHN WOO, WALTER LEE, KENNY WONG, JIMMIE WOO, GONG WONG and RONNIE ALUAG (?), the obvious conclusion is that the Teahouse is three place to GHOO!

CHAPEL THEATRE

The polished performances perfected under the capable direction of Barbara Vrooman of Torrance, gave Chapel Theatre audiences in Torrance an opening weekend packed with laughs, pathos and much entertainment. "Invitation to a March" written by Arthur Laurents has a plot that is a little complicated with people interlocked almost like a little mystery until their involvements are unfolded. A popular couple in South Bay theatres are teamed to portray one of the romantic angles with Jarl Victor of Palos Verdes as Tucker and Margaret Middleton of Redondo Beach as Camilla. Making a handsome couple, Victor portrays a most suave and distinguished Tucker with Mrs. Middleton a most gracious and charming Camilla. Tucker's wife Deedee (Connie Farrell) of Hawthorne makes no secret of the fact that she is the daughter of a fish monger, coming from a long line of fisher folk. Miss Farrell is excellent as Tucker's wife Deedee as she loudly and brassily dictates her wishes to Schuyler and his fiancée Norma, with a characterization that was very well thought out.

The delightful performances of Sandre Bellerue of Manhattan Beach as Norma, who cannot make up her mind (Continued on Next Page)
